BEACHY SCENTS USUALLY CONSIST OF ALDEHYDES (A COMPONENT BEST DESCRIBED AS CLEAN LINENS), AND MARINE ACCORDS (SAND, SALT AND SEAWATER)

WHAT THE expert says

"Technically, 'clean' or 'fresh' scents get that description because they use aldehyde notes, which generate an almost fresh-laundry aroma," says Ann Gottlieb of New York-based Ann Gottlieb Associates, a company behind scent introductions for brands like Marc Jacobs and Calvin Klein. "These wear close to the skin. They are delicate and give a feeling of understated elegance," says Wright, who adds that these scents are popular—and often advised—for the workplace.

“Like nothing else I’ve ever smelled. Almost like an elegant tanning oil—only better.”

“Reminds me of sparkling-blue water.”
