Spring is flower powered—
from the runway
to the dressing table.

Forget that it's still freezing—spring is coming early this year. The runways morphed into one big garden party, with designers conjuring all manner of blossom and bloom, from pretty to punky. Nicolas Ghesquière referenced Cristóbal Balenciaga's archived prints for his structured matelassé designs of swirling florals in a me'ée of bright, brocade-like colors; Dolce & Gabbana adorned their showstopping strapless dresses with painterly petals; and Thakoon Panichgul made edgy pretty with a rainbow of computer-generated techno-flowers. Beauty is right in tune: Claus Porto's latest soap star—Rozan—has rosy, Art Deco flair; from Bond No. 9 comes Union Square, a fragrance that pays homage to Andy Warhol's love of all flowers, from his favorite neighborhood, where he used to savor "the first smell of spring in New York," to his graphic Flowers series from 1964. Like a work of art, it, too, is limited edition: only 400 "portfolios" (including ten different bottle designs), available this March at Saks Fifth Avenue. —CHRISTINA HAN beauty > 182
